

LATINX/HISPANIC HEALTH & HERITAGE
FAIR

The Latinx/Hispanic Health and Heritage Fair (LHHHF) kicks off Hispanic Heritage Month in Salt Lake City each year! September 7, 2024, marks the 9th year! The event starts at 12pm and concludes at 8:30pm. Parade begins at 1:30pm. Come to the Gateway to have some fun!

The FREE, family-friendly, full-day event is an opportunity to explore the richness and diversity of Latin cultures while promoting health and wellness. The event has something for everyone. All are invited and the atmosphere is inclusive and welcoming.

The festival showcases traditional clothing, dance, and music from more than 30 countries! Food trucks and booths further enrich the experience, providing participants with a delectable taste of authentic cuisine. This year's event is presented by Take Care Utah, University of Utah Health, and the Utah Jazz!

Education: Take Care Utah, the University of Utah Health, the Utah Jazz and community partners will work to ensure every attendee gains actionable information on how to improve their health. Community health educators will be on-hand to connect with the 10,000-person crowd to distribute important information.

Access: Too many of the over 500,000 Latinx/Hispanic Utahns face barriers to accessing affordable health care. Without access to health coverage individuals and families face insurmountable barriers to meeting their full life potential. The LHHH Fair provides an opportunity for Latinx/Hispanic people to proudly celebrate their heritage and connect to valuable health resources.

Health and Wellness: U of U Health will provide health care resources including blood pressure checks, glucose tests, dental check-ups, vision check-ups, hearing checks, mammograms, health insurance education, and more. U of U Health, together with CNS (Community Nursing Services), will provide both flu and COVID vaccines on a first-come, first-served basis. Most of these services will be provided in English and Spanish. Mammograms will only be available with a previous appointment. U of U Health doctors will also be on stage providing activities to celebrate your family's health.

With an anticipated turnout of over 10,000 attendees, the event presents a prime sponsorship opportunity. We would be honored to have your support at various levels, offering a range of sponsorship options to suit your preferences.
